FIN-FUR AND FEATHER FACTS

Question: I shot some rabbits the other day that had numerous pea sized, clear jelly sacs in the abdominal cavity. Each sac had a white, round thing in the center. Are these rabbits safe to eat?

Answer: Yes, the sacs are the cysts of the dog tapeworm Taenia pisiformis and do not affect the flesh. Proper dressing of your rabbits will insure removal of all larvae, leaving only a clean rabbit carcass. This parasite probably accounts for over 90 percent of the useless waste of excellent meat.

Rabbits pick up the eggs of the tapeworm from vegetation contaminated with feces of a carnivore. The carnivore is the primary host of the parasite, the rabbit an intermediate host. When the carnivore eats the rabbit, the cysts develop into the adult tapeworm, completing the cycle.

The word of caution here is, do not feed the entrails of the rabbit, particularly the liver, to your dog, or leave them where dogs can find them.

Question: How can I keep the deer from eating my fruit trees and shrubs in my backyard?

Answer: There are a number of spray repellents that taste or smell bad to deer that can be used. They are generally available through major garden supply stores and agricultural stores. Small cakes of perfumed soap or clumps of human hair hung from the vegetation are also effective for short period of time.

The only sure way of keeping the deer away is to put up a deer-trick.

Dansville Marine Back from Japan

Marine L-Cpl. Kelley Hackett has completed a tour of duty at Camp Fuji, Japan, and will now be stationed at Camp Lejeune, N.C.

She is the daughter of Barbara Bailey of 106 Franklin St., and is here on leave before reporting to her new assignment Feb. 1.

proof fence. This may, however, prove expensive and unsightly.

Question: I understand that you can hunt only from sunrise to sunset, but my hunting partner wants me to hunt fox at night. Is this legal?

Answer: Yes, it is legal. After 7 a.m. of the first day of their season, fox, coyote and raccoon can be hunted at any time during the season. The sunrise/sunset limitations apply to traditional hunting of squirrel, rabbit, grouse, etc.

Generally, night lights and electronic calls are used which are legal as long as their power source is not a motor vehicle.

Question: I have a ferret and I have obtained a permit for it from the DEC. Does the permit allow me to hunt rabbits with the ferret?

Answer: The permit only allows you to legally possess the ferret. State law prohibits use of ferrets to assist in taking rabbits. It also states that possession afield of ferrets, fitch-ferrets or fitch shall be presumptive evidence of their illegal use.

Anyone with questions on the state's wildlife resources, hunting and fishing or related environmental matters should write: Fin, Fur and Feather Facts, NYSDEC, 6274 E. Aon-Lima Road, Avon 14414.

Athlete of the Week

Dave Hamaher and Tricia Hurlburt captured Athlete of the Week honors at Dansville High for their individual basketball performances.
